THE FIREMEN WILL NOT QUIT

DEPARTMENT WILL REMAIN INTACT

The Aldermen Keep Their Word With the Firemen and Decide to Erect a Building for Two of the Companies—Profits Arising from the Dispensary Enabled the Promise to be Kept—Work Will Begin at an Early Date.

The Greensboro Fire Department will remain intact, this fact having been assured by the result of the special meeting of the Board of Aldermen last night, when it was decided to keep good the promise made the firemen by erecting a building to be used as headquarters by the Hook and Ladder Company and the Eagle Hose Company.

Every member of the board was present, together with representatives of the two companies above named. The only thing in the way of building the house was the lack of money, and when it was ascertained that the necessary amount (about $4,000) could be appropriated from the general fund the board decided, by a unanimous vote, to erect the building.

By conferring with officers of the dispensary it was learned that the city's share of that institution's profits for the last six months of the present year would be at least $4,000, and this is what enabled the aldermen to keep their word with the firemen. A member of the board who is glad to know that the institution will be perpetuated in the memory of the people remarked today that the firemen's headquarters would stand as a monument to the Greensboro dispensary.

It is presumed that the work of constructing the building will begin at an early date. The fire committtee advertised for bids several weeks ago, but as a contingency arose which made it appear that the building could not be erected the contract was not awarded. The building will be erected on the present market house lot.

MR. SIMMONS TO SPEAK.

The Democratic Chairman Will be at the Court House Monday Night.

Communicated.

Although Hon. F. M. Simmons, the chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee, has been in public life for fifteen years, and has three times led his party to victory in the last ten years, and is now leading her there for the fourth time, few people in this part of the State have had an opportunity to become acquainted with and to know him personally. The reason for this is that most of his public life has been spent in managing political campaigns and his personal services during the public speaking period of those campaigns have been required at Democratic headquarters, hence he has not had the opportunity of talking to the people from the stump.

In this campaign, however, after he has performed the arduous work of carrying the State for Aycock and the Constitutional Amendment, he has a little breathing spell, and his services have been secured to make a few speeches in the State in behalf of the Bryan and Stevenson ticket. An appointment has been made for him in Greensboro, Monday night, October 22, at 7:30 o'clock. He is drawing large crowds wherever he speaks and is making a powerful argument for Democratic principles. The local committee invites everybody to come out Monday night and hear him.

The Charlotte Observer to be Issued Every Day in the Year.

The readers of the Charlotte Observer will be pleased to learn that, beginning Monday, that progressive paper will be published every day in the week. This is a new and advanced step in North Carolina journalism and a venture that will doubtless be rewarded by an increased patronage.

A discerning public has long since come to regard the Charlotte Observer as North Carolina's leading daily in all respects.

A Growing Enterprise.

The Piedmont Cotton Company, established here less than a year ago, is meeting with splendid success. The company sells cotton direct, dealing with manufacturers all over the South. A branch office has just been established at Spartanburg, S. C., to handle the increasing business in that section.

FULL BLOWN REPUBLICAN.

The Mill News of Charlotte Jumping Flat-footed on Bryan—"Politician May go to Thunder."

Correspondence of The Telegram.

Charlotte, Oct. 19.—"Give us good wages and prosperity and the politician can go to thunder" is an extract from the Mill News in an editorial today.

The editorial is based upon an item from Charlotte published in several of the State papers about twelve days ago saying that a prominent man here had expressed the opinion that there was a subtle influence at work among the milling classs tending to carry their vote over from Bryan to McKinley and further that in the same connection the Mill News was out in an editorial in which Bryan and his platform were thoroughly riddled.

The editorial says further: "The issues now are the same that they were four years ago, except that we are now enjoying a fulfillment of the promises of McKinley and have seen every theory of Mr. Bryan exploded. We do not take this position because Mr. Bryan calls himself a Democrat or because Mr. McKinley is a Republican, but because the prosperity of the country is dearer to us than the prosperity of a few politicians. Give us good wages and prosperity and the politician can go to thunder."

"Some of the newspapers and correspondents who do not agree with us seem mystified that we should say anything to our readers about national issues. It is an amusing fact that prior to the August election when we exposed certain so-called labor organizers who were trying to deceive the mill operatives some of these men threw up their hats and danced with great joy, but now when we see fit to talk about prosperity and its continuance they shudder because we are getting 'politics' into the Mill News and talk about 'subtle influences' and look wise."

Y. W. C. A. RECEPTION.

Students of the State Normal and Industrial College Entertained.

The annual reception of the Young Woman's Christian Association of the State Normal and Industrial College was given last night, proving a most enjoyable occasion. The reception was given complimentary to the new students of the institution and to enable all to become better acquainted.

The program, which had been arranged with much care, consisted of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, etc. The evening was enjoyed by all, especially the new students who were prone to homesickness.

Short talks were made by Rev. L. Johnson and Rev. C. E. Hodgin.

The Y. W. C. A. is doing a good work and is appreciated by the students of the institution, practically all of whom are members. Miss Eunice Kirkpatrick, of Mecklenburg county, is president of the Association.

FEVER PATIENT IMPROVING.

The Health of the Student Body at the State Normal and Industrial College Was Never Better.

Miss Rheinhart, the young lady at the State Normal and Industrial College who has fever, is getting along very well. The fever has to run its course, but the patient's condition is not considered at all dangerous.

The health of the student body in general was never better. The knowledge of the case of fever in the institution has caused nothing like a panic, as it has been well understood that it was contracted at the home of the patient.

Buys Greensboro Dirt.

Mr. W. B. Owen, of the Hiawatha Manufacturing Company, Gibsonville, is among the latest to invest in Greensboro real estate. He has just purchased several lots on Randolph avenue, on the Southside, with the intention of building on them. The trade was consummated through L. H. Sturgis & Co,

Mrs. Royster a Winner.

By Wire to The Telegram

Not a house is left standing. On Wednesday the citizens heard a roaring up the mountains where the storm was raging. Fearing a flood they fled to the second foot hills just in time to escape the deluge of water that swept through the village of five hundred inhabitants. So far as was known when the messenger left only one or two children were drowned.

"Mrs. Royster's Practical North Carolina Cook Book," just issued from the press, will appeal to careful housewives everywhere. It is compiled and edited by Mrs. Etta Farrar Royster, of this city, which, with those familiar with this lady's superior talents as a housekeeper, is a sufficient guarantee of its worth.

The book contains a large number of recipes for cooking and preparing everything good to eat, all of them having been given practical tests by the author, who therefore "speaks with authority."

A limited number of volumes were printed, and these will be sold at 75 cents each. They may be had at either of the city book stores.

GERMANY AND ENGLAND AGREE.

Officially Announced that Germany and England Will Stand Together in Behalf of China.

Rome, Oct. 20.—A pekin dispatch says that Field Marshal Von Waldersee has ordered the Pao Ting Fu expedition to return to Pekin.

A DOCTOR'S BUGGY SMASHED.

HE HAD A REMARKABLE ESCAPE.

Dr. J. R. Reitzel, of High Point, Was Crossing the Southern Track This Morning When a Train Ran into His Buggy and Tore It to Splinters—Cotton Mill Men Pleased.

Corresrondence of The Telegram.

High Point, Oct. 20.—Dr. J. R. Reitzel, a practicing physician here, came very near losing his life this morning. In crossing the railroad at the High Point Furniture Co., on Factory street, the shifting engine ran into his buggy, smashing it to pieces and crushing the horse's leg, and otherwise injuring it so that it had to be killed. Dr. Reitzel himself was knocked several feet down the railroad track, but came out without injury. His escape seemed nothing short of a miracle, as he was in the buggy with the top up, which was splintered. Dr. Reitzel says that no alarm was given for the crossing, and the first thing he knew was some one yelling at him, the minute he was struck.

The cotton mill men who were here yesterday expressed themselves at being well pleased with what they saw in High Point.

TRINITY COLLEGE LECTURE.

Will Have Several This Year—A Number of Men Have Gone North to Take Courses.

Correspondence of the Telegram.

Durham, October 19.—A committee of the faculty appointed to arrange a series of lectures for this year contemplate having several very interesting lectures. The first of the series will be delivered by President Kilgo next Monday evening.

Several Trinity men have gone north this year to take graduate work in the universities. Messrs. W. W. Flowers, S. S. Dent and W. W. Card are at Harvard; W. K. Boyd at Columbia; J. M. Culbreth at Yale; Percy Reade at the University of Michigan; L. C. Nicholson at the University of Missouri; B. G. Allen at Johns Hopkins. There are a number of Trinity men who will take their degrees at northern institutions this year. The number of men who go north to take graduate work after completing their work at Trinity is increasing each year.

Mr. Kugimiya, of Japan, has entered college. Mr. Uematsu, of Kyote, entered some weeks ago.

Work on the new boulevard is progressing rapidly, and in a few days work will begin on the campus. The Burch house on the corner of the campus was bought by the college last spring. The house is to be moved to make it possible to extend Main street. The large gate at the front entrance will also be moved. The appearance of the campus will be greatly improved.

President Kilgo has returned from South Carolina, where he spent a few days among the scenes of his boyhood. He had just reached home when he was called to Chapel Hill to conduct the funeral exercises of Mr. James E. Mason, who died at that place on Wednesday.

Dr. W. P. Few and Edwin Mims will represent Trinity at the celebration of the twenty-fifty anniversary at Vanderbilt University.

Prof. Plato Durham leaves Saturday for Wilson where he goes to fill an engagement to speak.

GENERAL WOOD ARRIVES HOME.

TALKS OF YELLOW FEVER IN HAVANA.

Says the Death Rate, Including Yellow Fever is Much Less Than Ever Before—The Spaniards Who Have no Idea of Sanitation are Responsible for the Fever.

By Wire to The Telegram.

New York, Oct. 20.—Major General Wood, governor of Cuba, arrived today on the steamer Yucatan from Havana. He will proceed immediately to Washington, and return to Havana by way of Tampa. He says he came by request of the Department and to take his family to Cuba as he will be unable to come up again this winter. Affairs are quiet in Cuba now and the people are busy preparing for the convention. The death rate in Havana, including yellow fever, is smaller than in many years. The recent increase in yellow fever is attributed to the large imigration of Spaniards, who are not immune and are susceptible to the disease, not only on that account but because they have no conception of sanitation. Officials are making arrangements to establish a quarantine system detaining them on Hulks until they can be forwarded to their destination in the interior. Of course, many will remain in Havana, finding employment there, and we must expect to find cases of yellow fever among them.

"FATHER FORGIVE THEM."

Under the Preaching of a Powerful Sermon Last Night Many Persons Were Converted.

Dr. Rowe's sermon last night from the text, "Father, forgive them for they know not what they do," was a most powerful appeal, as well as a terrible warning to the unsaved. The people of whom the words of the text were spoken were excused by the Saviour because of their ignorance, but no such excuse can be offered by any person enjoying the privileges of our enlighened community, where the gospel is constantly being declared unto them.

The sermon made a deep impression on the large congregation present, not only by the vital truths it contained, but by the earnestness of the speaker, and his evident desire for the salvation of those in sin. The Holy Ghost came down in Pentecostal power, and eight or ten persons found pardon for their sins and were filled with the "peace that passeth all undestanding."

The services are being attended by ever increasing congregations and much interest is being mainifested. Services will be conducted tonight at the usual hour, 7:30.

Mr. Henry Peyser, who has been engaged in the job printing business in Petersburg, Va., is in the city. He resided in Greensboro about 15 years ago, being connected with the North State. He is, of course, wonderfully impressed with the many changes that have taken place since that time.

Mr. Peyser has disposed of his business in Petersburg and is out prospecting.

A REFORMATORY ASSOCIATION

ORGANIZATION FOR INSTITUTION.

No Reason Why Next Legislature Should Not Establish it—New $10,000 Building at Methodist Orphanage—Father Worth in Trouble--Inauguration of State Officers January 15—The Auditorium Question Still Agitating Raleigh.

Special Correspondence of The Telegram.

Raleigh, Oct. 20.—The cadet battalion at the Agricultural and Mechanical College is not as yet completely uniformed, owing to the failure of a big Philadelphia firm which got the contract to furnish the uniforms on time The corps has only 150 rifles, while it is 282 strong. Requisition for 150 more rifles has been made upon the War Department, which promises that they shall be issued, and also promises to issue two 3-inch rifled cannon, so that artillery instruction can be given.

D. H. McLean writes to Democratic State headquarters here from the Eight district that the outlook is all right and that Buxton will defeat Blackburn.

W. H. Worth is elected chairman and Rev. Baylus Cade secretary of a State Reformatory Association here The churches, all denominations, are back of the movement. If they press it, all over the State, it will go through The State aught to have had the reformatory years and years ago. There is no reason why the Legislature of 1901 should not establish it.

Another building is to be erected at the Methodist Orphanage here, to cost about $10,000; to be of brick, three stories high, and with slate roof.

The auditorium question is up again here. The site is not yet chosen. That first agreed on, in rear of the Trade building, by no means suits a lot of the stockholders, who desire it to be in a public place. Meanwhile, those who have subscribed must pay up their subscriptions. Money is the thing needed. October 30, a decision will be reached, one way or another. The stockholders will not attend in person in sufficient strength to make a quorum, so a committee is appointed to get proxies.

It is expected that the inauguration of Aycock and other State officers will occur about January 15. The Legislature has to meet, organize, and then canvass the election returns and fix the inauguration day.

Father Worth is in more trouble. He is ordered by the Supreme Court to pay Theophilus White, the present lord high admiral of the State's oyster navy, $400 salary. As yet, White's little bill is not in hand. Governor Russell's "God of War," J. C. L. Harris, now in Washington, represents White, and when he returns, the bill will be duly sent in. A member of the Legislature declares if Father Worth pays the money, he will certainly be impeached and ousted from office. He says there will be time enough between the day of the meeting of the Legislature and the expiration of Father Worth's term of office, to handle his case; that the Legislature forbade the treasurer to pay White, and now comes the Supreme Court and issues a mandamus instructing the treasurer to pay him. It will not be forgotten there was plently of talk about the Legislature's possible impeachment of the Supreme Court. Father Worth when asked today what he would do, replied, "of course, I shall pay. What, not obey the Supreme Court when it puts a regular mandamus on you?"

The Republican Executive Committee, of the Third Congressional district, meets at Dunn today and will decide whether it will nominate a candidate for Congress or endorse John E. Fowler, the Populist nominee. Oscar Spears, of Dunn, says he don't know what will be done.

Joseph J. Martin, Republican nominee for Congress in the Second district, decides to accept the nomination. He was for quite awhile in doubt about it. His health is very poor and it does not appear possible that he can make anything like an active canvass.

The following companies of the State are by order disbanded and the commissions of their officers revoked, for failure to comply with the laws and regulations for the government of the State Guard and upon the recommendation of Inspector General Haygood: Company D, First Regiment, Reidsville; Company E, Second Regiment, Plymouth; Company M, Second Regiment; Maxton. Two divisions of the naval brigade, those at Southport and Mt. Olive are disbanded for the same reason. This is quite a sweeping reduction of the force, but 500 men who can be depended upon are far better than 5,000 who cannot be.

The officials of the United States District Court have returned from Elizabeth City. There were nine cases on docket there, and court lasted two days, an unusually long term for that court. One man, a negro, named Shelton, was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary at Nashville, Tenn., for taking a letter out of the postoffice, addressed to a negro pensioner, who was dead and for endeavoring to get another negro to personate the dead one, so he (Shelton) could get the pension money. The sentence would have been longer had not Shelton be haved well in jail and revealed a plo to kill the jailer.

First comes the owner of the timber. He just woke up to the value of it and wants double last year's prices. Then the sawmill man. He has not been making a fortune and thinks now he should share a little in the general prosperity

They say to us: "We must have so much for our trees and work." After a while it is "up to you." Don't kick. You don't suppose we have nerve enough to put up prices unless they had first been put up on us. No, indeed. But prices are NOT high. They have been to low and are just now getting reasonable. Your children will be glad to build at double the price it now costs you. It is a trite, but true saying, if you want to build, "Now is the time."

THE PRONOUN "I."

BY SHAWEN.

Written for The Telegram.

If by any possibility the pronoun "I" were to be lost from the vocabulary, conversation would be decapitated and the art of correspondence would be like a wheel without a hub.

"I" is a habit. It spreads over speech like the wild onion over a pasture. It mars the written page like freckles on the skin. If one discusses a beverage, there are a dozen "I's" to one "drink;" if a star, "I" would still seem to be the subject. Fools there have been to write their novels in the first person—and a few it must be conceded, who were not fools.

There are men addicted to relating their own romances, and it is amusing to note the intentional ingenuous beatitudes with which they surround the pronoun "I." Fictionary loves are tame and faulty beside their own. They could not be made to believe that men who love genuinely, and with some depth of soul, are prone to be reserved, and even dumb, concerning it. The first transport that possessed an accepted lover may cause delirium and volubility, but these subside, even at the very ardor of the sun abates the sun the surface moisture left by new fallen rain.

The modesty of "I" is in its spelling—the shortest word in the language. On that dimunitive pronoun the destinies of empires hang; "love, fame, and fortune on its footsteps wait." The heart of woman bides its advance and crowns it with a life's allegiance. Its voice gives liberty or doom; its affiliation decides office and authority, its censure compels collapse, its approval triumph.

With "I" out of the way, a man could seek the converging point of many experiences, instead of depending solely and waiting tediously on his own.

Men wonder at genius and quabble over its definitions, when it may be none other than the retirement of the ego, whereby, instead of flowing as a stream from its own source, it is made a reservoir and collects the experiences of innumerable lives.

It is easier to believe of a fine talker that he was originally a fine listener, a smart collector, than to superhumanize his gifts as some divine bequest, withholden from ordinary mortality. This is not to say that in exceptional men there are not exceptional endowments other than intellectual acquisitiveness. Genius is probably to be forever inscrutable to exact analysis, but it is not irrational to conceive that the faculty of mental acquisitiveness, together with the capacity of incisive examination, operating through the medium of acute and ready sympathies, accounts in no small measure for what is designated genius.

A vast majority of men never escape the narrow confides of themselves. Their personal cares bound the little universe of their existence—they hold but little communion with the world, and that so vaguely that its vast concerns address them in dull confusion, "full of sound and fury, signifying nothing." The reassuring fact remains, however, that men are being drawn more and more from mental seclusion through the federating of all pursuits, first into local and then general bodies, for the purpose of meeting and exchanging idea and experiences. This federation has become widespeead, and affords today an invaluable medium of education. Education is hardly so flattering a designation as grown men would like applied to objects of their several orders, but those orders are educational, and fortunate it is that they can be so designated.

The expansion of the mind, the increase of experience along one line, helps its general strength and broadens its general view; the ego decreases and the multiple of experience changes from the singular to the plural.

A man is of small coucern who is concerned only in himself. It is a voluntary abridgement not desirable for him nor beneficial to the race, and, even though self-concern should bring him fortune, it keeps him a dwarfed, contracted man, meagre of heart and mind.

TWO CAMPAIGN CONVERSATIONS.

As we remarked some days ago, North Carolina will unquestionably cast her electoral vote for Mr. Bryan, and therefore in the heat of the campaign we may take a look about, and pick up what amusement is being furnished by those who are more overwhelmed with the "streneouness" of the campaign. Some repsentatives of each side are overwhelmed, and below we print two imaginary conversations, one from the News and Observer, a Democratic organ, and the other from the New York Sun, a Republican organ. They are both fine examples of campaign fulminations and bear a striking similarity.

[From the New York Sun.]

Because of the applause which greeted Mr. Bryan as he advanced to the front of the platform in Madison Square Garden on Tuesday night, it was impossible to report the little conversation that passed between the orator and the chairman of the occasion, Mr. Edward M. Shepard, of Brooklyn.

Mr. Shepard, as is well known, was in 1896 a particularly high-sounding anti-Bryan "Gold Democrat," and is a highly paid agent in defending and establishing that colossal "trust," the great American Sugar Company. If the greeting of these two distinguished Democrats had been faithful to the occasion, it would have been, in substance, this:

Mr. Bryan: "Glad to see you on this platform, Mr. Shepard. The speech I am about to deliver against trusts will show your private life to be occupied with the most nefarious and dishonest business known to this plutocratic age."

Mr. Shepard: "Proud to meet you, Mr. Bryan. Allow me to say, sir, that I am supporting you for President because I believe that you are willing to betray your public life's pledge to free silver, and that, if otherwise, the Republican party will be strong enough to preserve the country from damage."

Bryan and Shepard: "Three cheers for Aguinaldo!"

[From the News and Observer.]

Mr. Hanna is in touch with the coal trust and he said to them: "Look here boys, the Homestead strike is what defeated Harrison. If you don't put an end to this strike, Bryan will be elected. Then where will you be? He will crush your trust, secure competition, and your mammoth profits will be at an end. See? Isn't it better to payan additional ten per cent. in wages for six months than to have your trust outlawed? That's all there is in it. You know McKinley will stand by you to the end. He will go to New Jersey for a trust-dominated Attorney General, he will keep up high tariff, he will give you everything you want to keep up your trust. Don't you think an additional ten per cent. in wages for six months is a cheap way of buying such legislation and protection? And, besides, if you refuse to hear me, even if McKinley wins you need ask no favors. You will then be a 'bad trust.' We stand only by 'good trusts' which do as I say. And if Bryan should win he will put your tail in a split stick and then——"

But before he could finish, J. Pierpont Morgan was ready to undertake to make the coal trust "come down."

That is the story of how the strike was ended.

"Will Auditor Ayer go to jail?" asks the Raleigh Post. We do not anticipate seeing Halleluliah make this trip, but should he decide to do so, we hope that he will defer it till that youthful reformatory is built.

We copied yesterday from a Democratic paper a complimentary reference to the speech of Mr. McRary, the Republican elector of the seventh district. The other night a Republican speaking was postponed in Charlotte to give the hall for the use of a Democratic gathing. Last night the Simmons club of that town formally adjourned for the purpose of going to hear Senator Pritchard speak. What does it all mean?

Nell—"Maude doesn't follow the styles very closely, does she? See the way she holds up her skirt." Belle—"Gracious! Why, that's last week's style."

Feelings of safety pervade the household that uses the One Minute Cough Cure, the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results. It is infallible for coughs, colds, croups and all throat and lung troubles. It will prevent consumption. Howard Gardner.

Bloods—"Harduppe says you are half cracked." Slobbs—"That's better than being completely broke, which is his chronic condition."

COLD STEEL OR DEATH.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jauntice. He didn't count on the marvellous power of Electric Bitters to cure stomach and liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever. It's positively guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney troubles and never disappoints. Price 50c at C. E. Holton's drug store.

Mr. Simmons Made a Faux Pas.

Statesville Landmark.

In closing his speech at the court house yesterday afternoon Mr. Simmons, in his peroration, came near making a faux pas, as we scholars would say, or words to that effect. He was invoking the Democrats by all the names he could think of to vote the ticket and do about for it, and calling the names that he intended to conjure with he forgot (probably from force of habit in other years) and said "Cle"—getting that far on the old sheriff's name—and then changed it to Bryan. But the crowd caught on and some of them snickered good naturedly at Mr. Simmons' error. However, it was not a bad error after all, for the name of Cleveland has not entirely lost its power in this settlement.

ECZEMA'S

ITOH IS TORTURE.

Eczema is caused by an acid humor in the blood coming in contact with the skin and producing great redness and inflammation; little pustular eruptions form and discharge a thin, sticky fluid, which dries and scales off; sometimes the skin is hard, dry and fissured. Eczema in any form is a tormenting, stubborn disease, and the itching and burning at times are almost unbearable; the acid burning humor seems to ooze out and set the skin on fire. Salves, washes nor other external applications do any real good, for as long as the poison remains in the blood it will keep the skin irritated.

BAD FORM OF TETTER.

"For three years I had Tetter on my hands, which caused them to swell to twice their natural size. Part of the time the disease was in the form of running sores, very painful, and causing me much discomfort. Four doctors said the Tetter had progressed too far to be cured, and they could do nothing for me. I took only three bottles of S. S. S. and was completely cured. This was fifteen years ago, and I have never since seen any sign of my old trouble."—MRS. L. B. JACKSON, 1414 McGee St., Kansas City, Mo.

S. S. S. neutralizes this acid poison, cools the blood and restores it to a healthy, natural state, and the rough, unhealthy skin becomes soft, smooth and clear.

SSS cures Tetter, Erysipelas, Psoriasis, Salt Rheum and all skin diseases due to a poisoned condition of the blood. Send for our book and write us about your case. Our physicians have made these diseases a life study, and can help you by their advice; we make no charge for this service. All correspondence is conducted in strictest confidence.

IMPORTANT!

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 26th, 1900.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:

On and after October 15th, 1900, we, the undersigned, will do a strictly cash business. Our reasons are as follows:

1st. Absolute NECESSITY.

2nd. Laundry, the world over, is a recognized cash business and justly so.

3rd. Our accounts are necessarily small, and it causes an endless amount of confusion and expense to collect, besides losses each year in bad bills.

4th. All of our current expenses, such as labor, fuel, gas and supplies are cash, hence the stand we take is forced upon us. While we very much regret, in most cases, to exact the spot cash, yet we must treat all alike, and we see no other way out of the difficulty. We trust our customers will lend us their aid by stating when to return laundry and by being prepared to pay for same when delivered. Our drivers will have positive instructions to return to the laundry all packages not paid for.

We have on sale at office (for cash) coupon books from $1 to $5 which can be left at convenient place at home, so that on delivery of bundle the amount of laundry bill can be torn out by the driver.

VERY RESPECTFULLY,

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers and grandmothers never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of appendicitis, nervous prostration or heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and othaches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

MISSOURY HELENY

By Juliette M. Babbitt.

(From the Home Journal, New York. Reprinted by Special Permission.)

The family resources were small, and, when Lena had the chance of teaching the neighborhood school for the summer months, she gladly took it. She wrote brightly and hopefully to her friend, but Mrs. Morrison feared that the girl was overdoing, and was greatly worried about her. She had looked forward to taking Lena abroad, another year, to cultivate her voice, and was loath to give up her plans, even for a time.

Hugh Ramsey came, saw, and—was conquered, that little busybody. Cupid, winging an entirely unlooked-for shaft straight at his heart at his first meeting with the girl. She was, as Mrs. Morrison had predicted, a beauty indeed, with her soulful deep-blue eyes, long, dark lashes, finely penciled dark brows, roseleaf complexion, and hair—of that rare golden shade rarely seen beyond early childhood—coiled on the top of her shapely little head and falling, in soft, feathery rings, on her white forehead. She was as charming in mind and manner as she was in person, and the young man's subjugation was complete.

Hugh had made many visits to the little schoolhouse, and had ridden over one afternoon from his sister's place to plead his cause once more. The little frame schoolhouse stood by the roadside, at the foot of a thinly wooded hillside. From the doorway a charming view was had over a broad, farm-dotted valley, bordered with a fringe of trees and vivified by a winding river.

School was out, and the children had gone their several ways. The day had been very sultry, with sudden dashes of rain and frequent gusts of wind, and Lena—looking a picture in her simple blue muslin gown—said, as she began to put the things in order on her desk:

"You should not have come out in this heat, Mr. Ramsey, and you must go back before it storms."

"Never mind about the storm, Lena," he said, earnestly, leaning over the desk, trying to capture one of the busy little hands. "Listen to me. I must go away very soon, and I cannot bear to go until you have promised to be my wife. Can't you care for me a little, when I love you so much? Your school closes to-morrow, and I cannot endure the thought of your taking another and drudging so. If you will marry me you need not worry about your parents. I will be glad to make them comfortable. Jerry told me the other day that he was thinking of marrying Mary Jones, and that she was willing to come home with him and care for the old people. Your mother would approve, if she could speak, and your father has already given his consent. Do say yes, my darling, and let me take you right away. I know that I can make you happy, and Zadah will welcome you with open arms."

"I am afraid, Mr. Ramsey, that you do not fully understand your sister's wishes. I know that she hopes to see you marry your cousin, Miss Powers, and unite your two fortunes. She told me so last summer, and do you think anything would make me go against the wishes of one who has been so good to me? Your cousin is beautiful, accomplished, a woman of the world, able to take her place beside you in society. I am only a poor girl with no knowledge of the great world, and just enough education to realize my shortcomings. I know that Mrs. Morrison is fond of me, but she is not fond enough to welcome me as a sister. Go home, dear friend; marry your cousin and forget your fancy—it can be no more—for me. Say good-by now, and do not come again."

"If you really do not care for me, Lena, I would be a brute to urge you further; but I shall not marry my cousin. We do not care for each other in that way, and you are all wrong about Zadah's objecting to you. I did not tell you what she said in her last letter. I wanted—great Heavens! What is that?"

It had grown very dark, and a terrible roaring sound burst upon their startled ears. Running to the door, they beheld a fearful sight. Coming swiftly up the valley, a huge, funnel-shaped, black cloud, rising and falling, was mowing a wide path, leaving death and destruction in its wake. The air was thick with flying objects; parts of buildings and their contents; fence boards, farming implements, even large animals, all tumbling over and over, torn to shreds, now and then cast off to one side or the other. Only a moment did they stand gazing helplessly at the monster; then it passed, brushing, with its outer edge, the little building, lifting it up and tossing it aside like a feather. Hugh lay seemingly dead. Lena, uninjured, bent over him, covering his white face with kisses, crying:

"My dearest, my dearest! He is dead, and will never know how I worship him! Why did not I die, too?"

"Because, my darling," said Hugh, opening his eyes suddenly, and putting his arms around her, "you are going to live for me!"

ABBEY'S MEDICAL TALKS

Skin Diseases.

The secret of a healthy skin and clear complexion is proper action of the bowels and liver. If the action is sluggish, the waste matter in the blood is not carried away, but is forced out through the pores of the skin. Acne, carbuncles, flesh worms, eczema, hives, pimples are the result. Nature intended the fresh, rosy complexion of youth to last. It would, if your digestion were perfect. ABBEY'S EFFERVESCENT SALT will make it so. It regulates the digestive organs and keeps them active. It keeps the system free of the matter which poisons the blood. With pure blood, clear healthy skin is assured. Bleaches and external applications do no good, their effect is merely temporary and they injure the skin. The trouble is in the blood and it can be cured only, by keeping it pure and clean.

Are those pimples and facial blemishes worth anything to you, that you don't want to get rid of them while you can?

One of the City's Own

I.

THERE were ructions in the counting-house of Tatterson & Dewhurst. One or two junior clerks had received a more or less well-deserved "wigging," and there was a general feeling of worse to follow.

At last a small office boy entered the clerk's office and said in a shrill voice:

"Mr. Redbolt is to go to the governor at once."

There was a mischievous grin on the young gentleman's face, as if he knew what was coming, and most of the others, delighted at their own escape, chuckled, like many people do when some one else is in trouble.

Joe Redbolt turned just a shade paler when his name was called out, as if he, too, anticipated serious trouble, but he set his lips and stiffened his back, like a man who is going to make the best of a bad job.

"Good-by, Reddie, dear!" said somebody, with an unpleasant sneer. "If the governor gives you a rise, don't forget to stand drinks."

"Reddie looks worried!" murmured the cashier.

"Perhaps she has refused him after all," remarked another.

A moment later he was in the private office.

Young Mr. Dewhurst, who had managed the business since the death of his father, gave him a furtive look as he entered, and then turned hurriedly to a bundle of correspondence by his side and selected a letter with an air of malicious satisfaction.

The two men formed an odd contrast. They were of about the same age—28 or perhaps 30—but it required no great insight to perceive the difference in their characters. Redbolt was tall, straight-built and frank-looking; his principal was small, insignificant and obviously one of nature's sneaks.

One could imagine Redbolt being foolish, but never cowardly; one could imagine Mr. Dewhurst being sly, but never generous.

The interview was unusual; there seemed to be something in the background about which neither man spoke. Mr. Dewhurst was clearly master of the situation, and resolved to use his power; his managing clerk looked self-reliant, but perfectly respectful and polite.

The ball was opened by Mr. Dewhurst unfolding a cantankerous complaint from an unimportant customer. It was the merest trifle, and quite unworthy of the occasion. Nevertheless, Joe Redbolt was by no means surprised at the tone adopted. For some time past the smallest opportunities had been seized for fault-finding, and he knew by instinct that the climax had been reached.

"How do you account for this blunder?" said Mr. Dewhurst suspiciously.

His clerk gave a simple, straightforward explanation, which, to a reasonable man, would have been sufficient. But Mr. Dewhurst was not in a reasonable humor.

"It appears to me, then, that you are not in any way to blame, Mr. Redbolt?" he said cynically.

"I think not."

"You never make a mistake?"

"Not very often."

"Who is to blame, then?"

There was a moment's silence, and the two men looked into one another's eyes.

"You are, sir," said Redbolt, respectfully. "I acted under your instructions."

This appeared to give the unworthy little tyrant his opportunity.

"You are more than half impertinent!" he said roughly.

"I give you my word I didn't intend to be so," said Redbolt, with perfect good temper.

"Perhaps not, but I'm tired of it. You forget your proper position, and have crossed my will in several ways."

Mr. Redbolt colored rather painfully, and his principal continued, with a smile of spiteful triumph:

"You understand what I allude to?"

The clerk bowed slightly.

"Then I think you had better look about for another situation."

"Shall we calculate the month from last Monday?" inquired Joe Redbolt, in a perfectly even, matter-of-fact voice.

"Eh, yes," said Mr. Dewhurst. "But I won't ask you to continue your work here."

With that he pushed across the table a little pile of coins, which had been counted out already, clearly showing that he intended from the first to make use of the opportunity.

For the first time Joe Redbolt looked angry. It was adding insult to injury to send him away adrift at a moment's notice, as if he had disgraced himself.

It was the more outrageous because he was a distant connection of the Dewhursts by blood. The two young men had been for a short time at school together. They had entered the firm together, and Redbolt had worked his way up by sheer ability, under old Mr. Dewhurst's eye, to a responsible position.

Naturally, they knew the same people, and to some extent visited the same houses, and it was in this way that Dewhurst's inherent jealousy had ripened into positive rancor—for that there was a member of the fair sex at the bottom of it is almost obvious.

The innocent cause of the trouble, little dreaming of the mischief she was creating, had thoroughly enjoyed the rivalry of the two men, as every daughter of Eve is bound to do, and she had not made it quite clear which of them was to be favored, which is certainly a woman's privilege.

But Joe Redbolt was generally believed to be the lucky man, and Dewhurst had vented his unmanly spite in a thousand annoyances in the office.

However, in love, as in war, it is the unexpected that often happens. Joe Redbolt proposed, and was refused point blank.

Now most men, when they see a dangerous rival put out of court, bury their animosity and even become generous.

But this was not the case with Fred Dewhurst. Petty annoyances developed rapidly into daily insults, until the morning, as we have seen, he had found an excuse to cut his former school fellow adrift.

II.

Joe Redbolt picked up the pile of coins, counted them deliberately and put them in his pocket.

"Now, Fred Dewhurst," he said huskily, "we are no longer master and man, so that I can say what I think."

Dewhurst looked rather alarmed, and drew a small silver bell nearer to his side.

"Oh, don't be frightened!" said Joe, with a smile of astonishment. "I'm not going to thrash you! It wouldn't be fair to hit a man your size!"

Mr. Dewhurst tried to sneer, but only looked mightily relieved.

"I want to tell you what I think of you," said Joe.

"Go on!" said Dewhurst, with a grin. "Seeing that you've had the worst of it all through, I suppose I musn't mind a few spiteful words!"

"I want to tell you you're the meanest cad I've met, and if that poor girl marries you I'm sorry for her!"

"In fact, you're so sorry," said Dewhurst, "that you'd even marry her yourself! Capital! And, now you've said enough, I'll wish you good-morning."

With a mighty effort of self-restraint Joe pulled himself together, and, resisting the impulse to knock him down, swung out of the room.

He had lost everything—the girl he loved and the means of earning his living. He was alone in the world, with no prospect but that of commencing life again in some counting house, and—then suddenly he remembered. Only two nights before he had attended drill at the headquarters of his volunteer corps. The men had been asked which of them wished to join the C. I. V. for the front. He thought of the glow that had burnt through his veins, how he had longed to offer himself, and had only been prevented by his feeling of obligation to his old friend's business. Now he was free!

That settled it. Old England was in need of help from men such as he. He was as sound as a bell in wind and limb; he had done his turn at volunteering and could shoot more than a little.

Within half an hour his name was entered as one of those who were ready for service at the front, and he was ordered to go before the doctor.

That gentleman laughed at him.

"If we get 1,400 men as fit as you are," he said, "we shall do well!"

Having successfully passed all the tests, and been duly enrolled as one of the city of London imperial volunteer corps, he felt slightly easier in his mind.

At last the final moment came. He had attended the service at St. Paul and sung the national anthem until he was hoarse. He had been slapped on the back by hundreds of warm-hearted but heavy-burdened citizens. He had even fought his way successfully through a mob of enthusiastic patriots all the way from Bunhill Row to Nine Elms, where he was one of the first to arrive.

There stood the train waiting to take them to Southampton. There, too, stood the long-suffering band, and every minute groups of breathless, excited men in khaki, who had also fought their way through the crowd, rushed onto the platform.

Of course it was all over. There was nothing to be done but get into the train and say good-by to old London for months—perhaps forever. Once more a gloomy sense of loneliness came upon him. Everybody else had a chum or a relative to see him off. And then—an angel came from heaven? Not quite! But an earthly angel appeared, in the shape of a slight form in a long black cloak, who was pushing her way feverishly through the crowd, eagerly scanning the faces of the "gentlemen in khaki."

Then their eyes met, and in a minute he was clasping in his arms the girl who had refused him a month before and in whose presence he had always been so shy that he had never dared to press her hand.

How had it happened? There seemed no need—and certainly no time—for explanations. Why had he accepted her foolish "No" when she never meant him to? She always thought he would speak to her again. Why had he been so awkward and brusque in the way he had asked her? He had given her no chance to say "Yes." And it was only last night she had learned what had happened—from Dewhurst's own lips—and she had cried all night at the mischief she had done, and would he forgive her? And did he care for her a little bit?

"Take your seats, there," roared an officer.

It was not the time for mock modesty. With her arms round his neck and tear-stained cheeks pressed to his, she promised to wait for him.

"God bless you!" he whispered.

"And God bring you back to me!" she answered.

And then, with cheers and whistles, and the band playing "God Save the Queen," and men shouting and laughing and crying, the train moved out, and the City's Own were en route for the front.—Black and White.

DON'T COUGH

Stop it with Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

A little coughing is nothing—the tickling, that makes you cough once, is some dust; not the least harm. You scratch an itch, and forget it. This cough is scratching an itch.

Inflammation: a germ perhaps; it's alive; like a seed in moist warm ground; it will grow if you let it, especially in children.

One hundred and eighty-seven thousand nine hundred and forty-six. These figures represent the total number of cartons packages containing Crackers, sold and shipped from "Langdon's" factory in the month of September. At this time these figures seem almost marvelous, and yet at the rate of increase packages are commending themselves to the cracker-consuming public, it will be but a short time when the above figures will be but a bagatelle. This is as it should be, and the patent package adopted by the National Biscuit Company is responsible for this condition of affairs. People are beginning to learn that this package preserves the fresh baked crispness, and that the contents are as palatable as when they first came from the oven. We just want to say that we sold OUR SHARE of the above amount of goods. Our trade on crackers in packages is increasing all the time.

Mr. John B. Wright,

Dear Sir—We like the Emerson piano very much. I remember to have heard the tuner say it was more durable than any piano we had, and we have the Steinert, Chickering, and Knabe, etc. I doubt if he would sign his name to that in black and white, but I am sure that he considers the Emerson piano as one of our best wearers. Yours truly,

C. C. BRAGDON.
